

CHEERS: The audience could barely contain their excitement at the breathtaking performances.

BELOW: Judges Johnny Gonsalves and Kees Dieffenthaler enjoy the thrilling performances.

Night of surprises

THIS week marked a very special episode of Digicel Rising Stars. The night began with a surprise, as 'Mr Wotless' himself, Digicel Endorsee Kees Dieffenthaler emerged from the audience to assume his position as guest judge. "I want to see some fresh talent," he exclaimed. He was not alone in that wish, as Johnny Gonsalves, Glenda Collens, and Michael Salikram all expressed hopes of being blown away.

Having survived the first round of eliminations, the three remaining contestants from the Port of Spain group knew they were safely into the next stage of the competition. The same could not be said for the six talented contestants out of San Fernando, who began the show not knowing whether they would be performing that night. Though they all had strong hopes, only Camille Comas, Nicole Rampaul, and Reena Ramsaran had secured the necessary votes to go on.

The remaining singers were challenged to step out of their comfort zones to perform a reggae/dancehall song of their own choosing. Each performer delivered soulful and charismatic renditions, which ranged from selections by Bob Marley and Barrington Levy to JC Lodge and Tessanne Chin.

Even our own Sherwin Gardner's 'I Worship You' was covered by Rampaul, whose voice moved the crowd and excited the judges. Ramsaran's expressive and well-controlled performance of 'Three Little Birds' left Gonsalves grasping for words of praise. Reprising 'Hideaway', Comas managed to give a performance that was at once smooth and powerful.

The biggest surprise of the night was revealed at the end of the show, when the judges announced that they had chosen to bring an eliminated contestant back as a wild card. It was soon revealed that Dezi had been chosen and she took to the stage to give a breathtaking rendition of Alaine's "Without You" that confirmed that the judges had made the right decision.

Tune in to TV6 this Sunday at 8 p.m. to find out just what they'll be performing and don't forget to vote to send your favourites on to the next step on the path to becoming T&T's next Digicel Rising Star.
